Parade, Pageant, Bands, Fun Highlight This Week's Festival

by Konrad Herling and James Inzeo, Jr.

A grand parade on Monday morning, the crowning of Miss Greenbelt, Junior Miss Greenbelt and Little Miss Greenbelt on Sunday evening and music played by top notch bands are the highlights of this weekend's Labor Day Festival. There will be myriad other activities and events to provide fun and enjoyment to Greenbelters, their neighbors from other communities and the many former Greenbelt residents who return for the food and fellowship at this annual event. Saturday is Kid's Day, sponsored by Greenway Center, with events for all ages. Sunday is Family Day, sponsored by Beltway Plaza Mall.

Sunday morning will feature a number of contests. Beginning at 9 a.m., there will be a slow pitch tournament, a tennis tournament, horseshoe doubles tournament, a golf contest and finally a four-on-four beach tournament (consult your calendar for more details). At 12:30, there will be a Children's Walking Scavenger Hunt over the Recreation Center.

The focus will shift in the afternoon to the Festival Stage. Getting the ball rolling will be the Northern Virginia Ethical Society who will provide "wonderful, peaceful sounds... You'll come away refreshed" according to Greenbelt Labor Day Festival (GLDF) entertainment co-chair, Patti Brothers. Next, "The Wheel", an all acoustic duo offering folk, rock, country and blues and the talents of Steve Shartel and Mike Bobrik. The Wheel's music ranges from original music to The Grateful Dead to The Rolling Stones to The Allman Brothers.

At 3:15, the Chromatics, who last performed in Greenbelt at the Greenbelt Day Moonlight Concert, will perform. An a cappella group, the Chromatics consist of talented vocalists, most of whom work at the Goddard Space Flight Center. They offer a rich variety of popular, classical and doo-wop classics.

Next on stage will be the Southwest Virginia Cloggers, followed by Ida Seibert, who drew rave reviews at last year's Talent Show.

The afternoon's stage program concludes with New Deal Cafe veterans Doug Alan Wilcox & Friends.

There are a number of other worthwhile programs which are taking place concurrently. The Greenbelt Writers Group is holding an open house in the Community Center's Media Room from 1 - 5 p.m. The Greenbelt Museum, located at 10-B Crescent Road, is open also from 1 - 5 p.m. The Photo & Art Exhibits will be on display from 1 - 6 p.m. Registration for the 31st 15-kilometer, Larry Noel Race will take place at the Recreation Center at 5 p.m. The race begins 6 p.m.

If you're interested in a quick cup of coffee at the New Deal Cafe, its doors will be open from 6 to midnight.

Little Miss Greenbelt

Beginning at 6:30, the Miss Greenbelt pageant returns to center stage. The Little Miss Greenbelt contestants will be first in line. Three participants we missed in earlier coverage are Melanie Gilkerson, Jessica House and Charlene Kym.

Melanie, 7 years old, and entering second grade spent a lot of her summer swimming and playing "theater" with her friends, acting often in the role as director. She directed her friends in their respective version of "Hunchback" and "Pinocchio". Could we see Melanie involved in Greenbelt Arts Center produc-

Greenbelt Monopoly Sale And Other Council Actions

by Diane Oberg

From the July 29 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council:

Lions Petition

Ralph Bram asked council to support the Greenbelt Lions Club new fundraiser. The group plans to sell the "Greenbelt Game," similar to Monopoly. The properties along the sides of the board and the corner squares will be sold to local groups and businesses. In addition, the club will seek 400 individual patrons, whose names will be listed in the center of the board. Bram asked council to purchase a property for $200, permit the club to use the city logo and the councilmembers' names on the game board, and have the city purchase a number of the games for gifts, awards or other official purchases. In addition, he encouraged the councilmembers to become individual contributors as well.

Mayor pro tem Judith Davis, who was presiding in place of Mayor Antoinette Bram, who recused herself from the discussion of her husband's request, expressed a desire to follow council's normal procedures of allowing staff to review and comment on citizen petitions. Councilmember Rodney Roberts agreed, and expressed some concern about using taxpayers' money to have his name listed on the game. The request will be considered at the August 12 regular council meeting.

Green Ridge House Petition

The executive board of Green

Ridge House wrote to council regarding its recent petition over the resignation of the previous resident manager. The petitioners had sought to allow the previous resident manager to live off-site and still manage the facility. After meeting with city staff, the board concluded that there had been "a lot of misunderstanding," that has now been cleared up.

Praises Due

Lieutenant John Lann commended Greenway Liquors for providing food and beverages to those working at Greenbelt Lake during the recent drowning incident.

the Community Relations Advisory Board, on the recently completed path to replace the Forestway sidewalk closed by a homeowner's fence. For their work on this project, Havekost praised the board, along with Ruth Osborne, who granted a construction easement needed for the project, and "most especially" Marilou Noriasta, who granted a permanent easement to the city of .2 acres of her property (in exchange for which the city constructed a fence between her property and the new sidewalk).

New Restaurant

Council heard from a presentation on a new restaurant "T.J. Austin's Roadhouse," proposed for the former "Bob's Big Boy" site in Beltway Plaza. The 226 seat "casual dining" restaurant will feature steaks, chicken, barbecued ribs and burgers with the meat cooked in view of the customers. Council unanimously agreed to "take no position" on the company's request for a liquor license. (Council rarely supports liquor license applications; generally it only opposes or takes no position.)

Hamilton Cemetery

After considerable research, the city staff has located the approximate site of the Hamilton family cemetery. Council unanimously approved spending roughly $400 to construct a cabi-

County Schools Open Tuesday

by Barbara Likowski

Schools will open Tuesday, September 3 for students of the Prince George's County public school system. According to Public Affairs Director Christopher Casen, at least 6,000 more students are expected this year. This increase will raise the number of students to 124,000. Seven hundred fifty new teachers have been hired for the county's 180 schools. Although no new schools have been added this year, the county hopes to add new buildings in order to decrease crowding.

Target Programs

The instructional emphasis this year will focus on early intervention. Programs have been designed to help children stay on grade level. A reading recovery program has been targeted to first graders. Superintendent Dr. Jerome Clark and Divisional Administrator for Instruction Leroy Tompkins emphasize that successful reading is the key to success in other programs.

The magnet programs will continue. Presently 330 places are open in the magnet school for which no Caucasian children have applied. For this year only the courts have given permission to the school system to offer these vacant places to Afro-American children. They had previously been set aside for Caucasian children in order to fulfill desegregation requirements.

A six year plan to place all children in neighborhood schools will continue to be studied. However, new schools would be needed to make this program successful.

A new federal panel will be formed this Fall to analyze the county desegregation efforts to date. School board member Alvin Thornton recently resigned his membership on the board in order to be a part of this panel. Thornton, the school system's expert on desegregation, will act as liaison to the board. His successor will be appointed by County Executive Wayne Curry.

Last year development of a program in Swahili was begun. Although not yet available, when finished it will be available to those schools which can work it into their curriculum.

Special Programs

The OASIS program will continue this year. Set up last year under the development of Dr. Clark, twenty cluster groups have been organized, with seven to 12 schools in each cluster. These are based in each of the 20 county high schools and are headed by a Chief Educational Advisor (CEA). The CEA is assisted by an advisory board. Each cluster has its own OASIS school. Greenbelt's OASIS school is Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

These special schools provide opportunities for the whole community to participate in different activities in the schools after hours, Monday through Saturday. These might include SAT preparation, instrumental music, computer literacy training, remediation classes, and a host of other programs.

With the help of the advisory board, special needs germane to that cluster will be identified. These will be addressed throughout the school day as well.

Two other innovative programs are Pacesetter and Atlas. A pilot program by the New American Schools Development Corpora-

City's Concerns on USDA Plans Draw Responses by Officials

by James Giese

The Greenbelt City Council has received responses by two officials to questions it had raised about locating the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) headquarters office complex at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC). USDA Assistant Secretary for Administration Wardell C. Townsend, Jr.'s responses occurred in a letter to Congressman Steny Hoyer, answering four questions which Hoyer had raised on behalf of the city. In addition, Director of Public Works and Transportation (DPW&T) for Prince George's County Betty Hager Francis, has written Mayor Antoinette Bram directly about the road improvement requirements imposed upon USDA by the county.

Site Costs/Benefits

Townsend advised Hoyer that USDA has always looked toward locating the office complex at BARC to be consistent with Federal policies in locating USDA facilities on Federal land and because such a location will help preserve BARC as a prime agricultural land resource. The cost of land acquisition was not a consideration.

If the government were to purchase private land for this purpose, Townsend believes that the project cost would increase between $6.5 and $13 million for land acquisition alone. Additional off-site improvements, redesign and other costs would be incurred as well as a significant delay of several years. In comparison, off-site costs at the BARC site will include $3.5 million for road improvements.

Tree Buffer

Hoyer asked if there will be a significant buffer of trees between the project and Sunnyside Avenue. Townsend replied that the buildings will be buffered from Sunnyside Avenue by a stand of existing trees and by the construction of a fully landscaped pond. The pond will be surrounded by trees and shrubs to provide a pleasant environment as well as to buffer the view of the industrial park on the north side of Sunnyside. In the buffered areas, trees will mature to 80 to 100 feet tall. Adjacent to the buildings, trees will be smaller, maturing to 30 to 40 feet in height.

Road Improvements

The road improvements to be undertaken, according to Townsend, were identified in a required environmental impact statement. These improvements are necessary to mitigate adverse impacts on the surrounding transportation system. The methodology for traffic analysis was agreed to by both DPW&T and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Road improvements will include the widening of Edmonston Road from two to four lanes between Sunnyside

Avenue and Cherrywood Lane and adding a second right-turn lane for eastbound Sunnyside Avenue at Edmonston Road. In addition, Sunnyside will be widened to provide an acceleration/deceleration lane 250 feet to either side of the main entrance to the office complex opposite Tucker Lane.

Townsend said it was determined that the only environmental impact requiring mitigation was that of traffic. The USDA analysis showed that, based upon the new traffic volumes and the constrictions existing at various local roadway intersections, there would be no "impact" on the existing bridge on Sunnyside Avenue over Indian Creek and therefore no need to widen Sunnyside at this location to handle 1996 traffic volumes.

Referring to the same subject, Francis advised the city that DPW&T has been advised by USDA that it will begin improvements to Sunnyside within six months. The improvements to be done by USDA are limited to those which could be imposed under the county road ordinance and adequate public facilities ordinance. "Although conditions on Sunnyside Avenue east of the bridge are not ideal," Francis said, "it was determined that due to environmental constraints and the adequate level-of-service of the two-lane section of Sunnyside Avenue, we could not require the USDA to provide additional improvements to Sunnyside Avenue east of the railroad tracks."

The level-of-service on Sunnyside, according to information included in Francis' letter, is currently D, the minimum acceptable level.

The DPW&T director, quoting the State Highway Administration, also told the city that the CSX railroad crossing is utilized by trains approximately 18 times per day during daylight hours. Crossing gates are provided and there have been no auto-train collisions reported during the past five years.

The county has Sunnyside on its needs list for pavement resurfacing and will schedule that work after USDA's improvements are completed. Bicycle lanes will not be provided because Sunnyside is not designated as a bicycle facility on the County's Master Plan, but the county will pave shoulders where feasible to provide an area bicycles may use. According to the information printout on Sunnyside provided by Francis, the usable shoulder width on Sunnyside is 0 feet.

Wetland Mitigation

Townsend advised Hoyer that a nation-wide permit under the Clean Water Act will be applied for, once the design and construction documents are complete enough to determine the precise area of wetlands to be taken by roadway improvements. It is believed that less than one acre of wetlands will be disturbed. Mitigation, which is expected to be less than three acres, will be provided by creating additional wetlands in the same watershed. USDA will be responsible for maintaining the mitigation area.

Transportation Management

Townsend listed seven strategies by USDA to reduce the use of single occupant vehicles and consequently traffic impact.

Preferential parking for car and van pools and a limited supply of parking (900 spaces for 1,500 employees, visitors and service vehicles) will encourage employees to share rides or use public transportation. The Employee Transportation Coordinator (ETC) will promote such efforts.

The ETC will be appointed to foster alternative community modes for employees. An important role for that person will be to assist in coordination of ride-sharing by maintaining lists of persons seeking ride-sharing arrangements.

Bike paths, showers and bicycle racks/lockers will be available to encourage bicycling. Walking is expected not to be significant, since there is little housing located nearby. None of the nearby roadways have adjacent pedestrian sidewalks.

The USDA intends to implement a highly visible shuttle bus service between the facility and the Greenbelt Metrorail/MARC station to foster the use of public transportation. This service will be heavily publicized before employees are moved out to the new facility. BARC employees will also be encouraged to use the shuttle.

The final two strategies for mitigating traffic on Townsend's list are utilizing variable work hours and compressed work weeks. The first will reduce the amount of travel during peak hours and the latter will reduce the number of days in a week an employee will have to commute to work.

Townsend does not list any efforts at telecommuting as a way to reduce the impact of the new facility on road travel. However, the federal government has an ambitious telecommuting program in operation.

The assistant USDA secretary concludes his letter to Hoyer by sharing the Congressman's view that BARC is an important open-space land resource around Greenbelt that must be preserved. He contends that selecting this site for the USDA's 350,000 square foot office facility will establish a Departmental presence which will help preserve BARC as a USDA agricultural resource and reduce the chance of the intrusion of further development.

GIVES Receives Lutheran Aid Gift

The executive committee of GIVES — Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service — met recently to hear some good news. Treasurer Nancy Birner announced that the group has received a gift of $700 from Lutheran Aid, an organization which assists community efforts to help the elderly and homebound remain independent in their own homes longer.

That is the primary purpose of GIVES, which responds to requests for transportation, assistance with household chores or yard work, or other services. A pool of volunteers is in place to answer such calls. The volunteer care giver receives a "care credit" for each hour served, and these can be exchanged for services, "banked" for future use, or given to other participants. Over 100 members are now registered in the GIVES computer which assists with the matches.

Office manager Irene Hensel and others will staff an information table at the Labor Day Festival on Saturday, August 31, from 1 to 5 p.m. Interested persons should plan to drop by to fill out a registration form, have their questions answered, Metrobus detours, needed when portions of Ridge Road were blocked, will not be needed for the next several weeks.

Museum Notes

by Sandra Lange

A nine-inch replica of the "Mother and Child" statue will be on display at the Lenore Thomas exhibit in the Gallery of the Community Center during Labor Day weekend. The Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) and the City of Greenbelt commissioned a local area sculptress, Klara Sever, to create a replica of the original statue sculpted by Lenore Thomas. Thomas created the statue especially for Greenbelt after Rexford Tugwell, director of the Resettlement Administration in the 1930s, had purchased the stone for her work.

Copies of the "Mother and Child" statuette may be ordered through FOGM. In an agreement with the City Council, FOGM and the city will share in any profits realized through the sale following repayment of the production costs.

During Labor Day week-end, the Greenbelt Museum, at 10-B Crescent Road, will be open on Sunday, 1 - 5 p.m., and Monday, after the parade until 3 p.m.

Writers' Group At Festival

The Greenbelt Writers' Group will have an information table at the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival on Saturday, August 31, from 12 to 5 p.m. Festival-goers are welcome to stop by to learn about the group, its activities, and its goals. The Writers' Group will also host an open house in the Media Room of the Community Center on Sunday, September 1, from 1 to 6 p.m. Visitors at the open house can spend more time talking with Writers' Group members. tions in the future? She is moving with her family in the near future to Greenbelt from Adelphi, so maybe it's not such a fantasy.

Jessica House, 8 years old and entering the third grade, is participating in the pageant for the first time. She is a cheerleader for the Boys & Girls Club program, and enjoys reading, art and music. Sponsored by Jones Communications, Jessica spent her summer swimming, biking, reading and bouncing on the trampoline.

Charlene Kym, 9 and entering the fourth grade, has learned the "Model T" method of walking and presents herself with confidence. Her favorite films of the summer of '96 were "Jack" and "James and the Giant Peach."

Junior Miss

Emily Kutchman, 12, is entering the seventh grade. She enjoys reading mysteries. She spent the summer visiting relatives in Disney World and Bush Gardens in Florida and the beaches of North and South Carolina. This is her second year in the pageant.

Amber Freeman, 11, will be attending Greenbelt Middle School. She wants to be an actress. Kelly White attends St. Hugh's School. She, too, is 11 and desires to go into nursing. Julia Wade, another St. Hugh's student loves animals and wishes to become a veterinarian.

Ashley Mullane, 12, attends Greenbelt Middle School and wants to be a nurse for the Air Force. Ashley Gohr, also 12, is a fellow student of Mullane's. Her two top choices for career—pediatrician or photographer. The final contestant, Bora Chung, is a 12 year-old seventh grader. She enjoys language arts classes. She spent her summer swimming and vacationing in Ocean City and Virginia Beach.

Miss Greenbelt

Last but not least, are the oldest group of contestants, vying for the "Miss Greenbelt" title. All three levels of friendly competition are sure to attract hundreds of friends, parents and neighbors.

While the judges are deciding who the next "Miss Greenbelt" will be, Marvin Gay and Joel Lichvar will present a slide show featuring Greenbelters at work. Often, recognition to those who make Greenbelt work, are forgotten. GLDF is attempting to increase an appreciation of the Public Works, Fire Department, Police and Recreation Departments, as well as those in the private sector who make Greenbelt a special place to live.

Diamond Alley

Sunday evening's program concludes with "Diamond Alley", sponsored by Greenbelt Travel Services. Here's your chance to try out the new eight by twelve dance floor, if you haven't already. This five-piece dance/rock and variety band, was formed in the Washington metropolitan area in late 1987. The band is best known throughout the Mid Atlantic region for "their unusual vocal talent (all 5 members sing), outstanding live performance and fantastic audience rapport" according to GLDF program co-chair Patti Brothers.

Many may take for granted the vast array of talented musicians who appear every year. Rick Ransom, festival president put it into perspective for me earlier this week with this question:

"What was the last concert you attended, where you heard a major band, and had a chance to enjoy the performance for free?". Altogether, the Festival Committee spends approximately $6,000 on musical entertainment.

Getting There

Before you embark for the festival, consider these few important tips. First, unless you're within walking distance from the fairgrounds, take one of the City's vans, driven by Greenbelt Labor Day Festival (GLDF) volunteers. You can pick up one of these vans once an hour at these three locations:

Eleanor Roosevelt High School, on the hour (also 30 minutes after the hour; between 6 p.m. and midnight); Springhill Lake Elementary at 15 minutes after the hour, and Greenbelt Elementary at 35 minutes after the hour (except from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday morning).

Second, if you find you need assistance once you're at the fair, check with any of the friendly Greenbelt Labor Day Festival (GLDF) volunteers. GLDF volunteers will stand out as they'll be wearing green and white baseball caps with the GLDF logo.

Finally, if it should rain, the location for activities outside of the carnival rides, will be the Community Center.

Monday morning is a GLDF tradition: The Labor Day Parade. Through the years, the parade has become a wonderful opportunity for Greenbelt to show off its fire and police departments, its public works program, volunteer organizations, as well as its myriad of artistic groups in the area. Once again, the parade marshal will be this year's Outstanding Greenbelt Citizen who will have received the award at Friday evening's opening ceremonies. The usual cast of political leaders will also be there. This year GHI will have an entry as will a new organization, "Greenbelt dot.com."

Parade Chair Herta Dietrich has worked long and hard to bring this about and her work often goes underappreciated. It's an important tradition to make sure the parade goes off without a hitch. Perhaps it's like umpires in a baseball game: everyone knows who the umpire is when a "bad" call is made, but no one seems to care when the game runs smoothly.

Among the tasks Herta tackles is securing someone to sign the oral descriptions for the hearing impaired. This year, Carrie Quigley will perform in this role as well as for the Miss Greenbelt pageant.

Please note that for those taking the vans from Greenbelt Elementary, none will be provided from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday, the morning of the parade.

Those who are off to an early start on Labor Day can sneak a peak at the Mayor's Annual Slow Pitch Finals, starting at 9 a.m. on Braden Field. Simultaneously, the tennis finals will be running.

Following the parade, stage programming will feature the University of Maryland Folk Group from 1:30 to 2 p.m., Red's Texas Barbeque Country Dances from 2 to 2:30 p.m. and Southbound USA from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Southbound USA is sponsored by Greenbelt Rotary.

Rappelling Demo

One event not reported on before is the helicopter rappelling exercise at Braden Field. On Saturday afternoon, at 2 p.m., members of the Greenbelt Police Department's Tactical Unit and United States Park Police will display a rappel team exercise. The unit members will rappel themselves from a helicopter onto the field. The Greenbelt Police Team has been trained by the Park Police for rappelling. Practical purposes for the exercise include extricating hostages or blocking criminals from escaping from roof tops or snipers from shooting at innocent citizens.

Management Courses Held at Roosevelt

Prince George's Community College's Continuing Education office is offering a series of short management courses during the Fall semester. Courses are geared to the new or aspiring supervisors or managers wanting training in the hands-on skills relevant to their positions. Courses are taught by practicing professionals in the field. A Letter of Recognition will also be available for those who complete 60 classroom hours of training.

Classes are scheduled for evenings and Saturdays at the Largo Campus, or Eleanor Roosevelt High School, starting in September and October. There is a fee.

Call 322-0726 for additional information, or a brochure.

So you can see, there is something for everyone.

Please consult your Labor Day program schedule published in last week's News Review for more details. And please, if you see someone wearing a green and white, GLDF baseball cap, take a second to thank him or her. There are a lot of volunteers we have failed to mention who deserve a lot of credit for making this event possible

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

There is more to be said about the alternatives to the shady lawn, but first an update on what is now happening in the garden. Some gardeners report that their tomato plants are wilting, getting brown leaves, and in general looking bad. The cause is most likely one of the tomato diseases. With all the rain, this has been a boom year for molds and fungi of all sorts. There is not much that can be done now, but remember to clean out the debris as it drops to prevent the diseases coming back next year.

If you are considering growing vegetables on through the autumn, plan now for planting during the next several weeks. Many leafy green vegetables and cool weather loving vegetables do well grown in the fall.

Shady Yards

Maintaining a well-kept lawn in any yard is a labor intensive job and in a shady yard it can be difficult. In the last garden column some attractive alternatives to the grass lawn were discussed. Once in place stone, brick, gravel, and mulch are attractive and low maintenance additions to the shady yard. Many people prefer plants to rocks, however, and for them there are a lot of options.

Many plants thrive in the shade. Plants that spread to grow low and uniformly are called groundcovers. They do what grass does - provide an expanse of one kind of plant that sets off larger plants and the house, giving an attractive appearance to the whole property.

Groundcovers

There are a number of groundcovers that offer a variety of options including: year round green, flowers, differing shades of green, and various combinations of green, white and yellow leaves. Even the best known groundcover, ivy, is available in different leaf shapes, sizes, and colors (including yellow).

Ivy is looked down on by many because it does its job too well - it is an aggressive spreader. Overlooked is the fact that without ivy there would be many a shade-filled yard full of patches of bare dirt, fallen leaves, and not much else. Ivy is a good example of a plant that provides a uniform mat of green that is maintenance free and green year round.

Vinca & Ajuga

Vinca minor and Ajuga are two other very hardy and reliable groundcovers. Vinca minor has small, dark green oval shaped leaves. It is green year round and will grow in full shade. It blooms in the spring with flowers blue, white or other colors. This groundcover is used very frequently, for it spreads to cover nicely without being aggressively out of bounds, as ivy can be if left unnoticed.

Vinca spreads out on runners from a clump of roots, and while ajuga does, too, it has the appearance of a whorl of leaves sending out a green string to start another whorl of leaves. It can shrivel up a bit in drought and the coldest of winter weather, but when conditions improve it comes back.

Ajuga sends up a spike several inches tall in the spring, covered with small flowers. Though the dark green with blue flowers variety is strongest, variations are available including purplish leaves, multi-colored leaves, white and pink flowers.

Pachysandra is another tough groundcover that is green year round. Its only drawbacks are the lack of nice flowers and its need for moisture.

Lily-of-the-Valley

Lily-of-the-valley is an old time favorite groundcover treasured both for its toughness and for the wonderfully scented flowers. Its oval leaves, held straight up in the air, will do well even in full shade, but die back in the autumn.

Somewhat taller plants can also be used as groundcovers. Ferns spring to mind as a good example, but they need to be grown in a moist spot.

Hostas

Hostas are a long time favorite, and rightly so, because they are very hardy, needing no care to survive and not much care to thrive. Hostas form clumps of leaves and send up stalks with bell-shaped flowers of lavender or white.

Plant breeders have created a wide range of leaf choices from inches wide to more than a foot in size and colored in variations of greens, white and yellows. With so many colors to choose from several different colored hosta plants can be combined to create pleasing plantings.

Liriope

Liriope is another excellent choice for a taller groundcover. This plant is used extensively by landscapers, so you have probably seen what looks like clumps of grass without even thinking of how wonderful this plant is. It seems indestructible - taking all kinds of shade and even drought in its stride. These plants make neat clumps to create an edge, as opposed to most groundcovers that spread by creeping on trailers and need a boundary to keep them in a line.

There are several sizes of Liriope and the leaves come in green or variegated with lighter green. This time of year it sends up a stalk with tiny purple flowers, reminiscent of the spring blooming grape hyacinth. There is a creeping liriope that spreads to make a mass and a liriope that stays in a clump.

There are many other fine groundcovers including sweet woodruff, lamium, epimedium. And a groundcover to avoid is the green variety of aegopodium, for it is even more invasive and aggressive than ivy.

Using Groundcovers

The variety of different groundcovers means you can pick and chose to create the effect you want in your yard. The whole "lawn" area can be planted in one type or in several zones of different types. One type of groundcover can fill in a trouble spot, such as next to the shady side of the house, under shrubs, under trees, or in poor soil.

Groundcovers with obvious differences, such as leaf type, height or color can be grown near each other for contrast. Two groupings of hostas, one mostly green, another mostly white, can be grown near each other, for example. Taller hostas can be grown with smaller hostas or groundcovers. Grassy liriope can be grown near broad leaved groundcovers. Plants with much white on the leaves can brighten up a darkly shaded spot.

The plantings around the municipal building are good examples of groundcovers in the garden. On the side facing Southway are hostas in bloom with white flowers and pachysandra. On the side toward the Community Center are vinca minor and liriope. There are fine clumps of hostas near the Roosevelt Center Mall between the video store and the doctors' offices.

Acquiring the Plants

Groundcovers can be purchased at most garden stores in the spring and a couple of well-stocked garden stores in our area have them throughout the growing season. It is possible to get small starts of groundcovers from neighbors, friends, and relatives. Since most groundcovers spread so well, people may in fact be glad to get rid of part of an old planting that is bursting its bounds. Be sure each piece has some roots on it.

Planting

Plants that come up year after year, such as perennial flowers and groundcovers, are best planted in our area in the early spring and early autumn. So if you do some planning now you could start a patch of groundcover in September through early October. Be prepared to keep them watered if it does not rain so they do not dry out.

Unless the plants are going into an established garden bed, prepare the soil before planting. Lay out a hose to make the outline of the bed. Kill all the plants that are already in the ground. Till the soil of the whole area to about two inches deep. Work in compost and an organic fertilizer with low analysis numbers, such as the first number listed is five.

Lay down mulch an inch to several inches deep. This will give the bed a uniform look until the plants spread out to cover the area and it will protect the plants from drying out and from frost heave. Plant through the mulch so that the roots of the plants are actually in the soil. Water well when finished.

The short cut, cheating method is to prepare the soil only where each plant is planted. This will yield much slower and poorer results, but some people may not be up to the best method of planting. And some very aggressive groundcovers, such as ivy and ajuga will not be set back much by using this method. Each plant should have a hole several inches wide and deep of prepared soil, such as added fertilized, compost, and/or manure.

Volunteers Sought by Nature Center

Watkins Nature Center in Upper Marlboro is seeking adult volunteers to assist with nature programs for school children. This program complements school science curricula by providing children with nature knowledge and an appreciation for the abundant natural resources in Prince George's County. Volunteers will help students to experience the wonders of nature through hands-on activities, nature hikes and lectures on a variety of natural and historical topics.

The program will be held throughout the school year, Monday -Friday from 9:30 a.m. to noon (schedule flexibility is available).

Training will be held at Watkins Nature Center on Wednesday, September 11, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. For further information call 301-249-6202: TTY, 301-699-2544.

Readers Needed

Early-morning volunteer readers are being recruited by the Metropolitan Washington Ear, Inc. to record the Washington Post and Time Magazine for telephone access by visually and physically impaired people. Weekday volunteers will be expected to read at least once a week, and weekend volunteers on alternate Saturdays and Sundays.

For more information and/or to volunteer call the PGVAC at 301-699-2800.

Prevent Reactions To Insect Stings

Being stung by a bumblebee or yellow jacket and experiencing a severe allergic reaction certainly isn't one of the most pleasant experiences in life. Dr. Robert Reisman, former president of the American Academy of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology has some suggestions for preventing allergic reactions this summer.

"People who have had a history of allergic reactions may have a venom allergy and should be tested by an allergist. They should be educated on insect avoidance, given an epinephrine kit for emergency use and evaluated for venom immunotherapy, a vaccination program that protects 98% of persons against future reactions."

There are over 2 million Americans allergic to insect stings, many of whom could benefit from immunotherapy. This treatment not only prevents future reactions, but in doing so, also improves a patients' quality of life by eliminating the fear associated with insect stings.

For a free patient information brochure on preventing allergic reactions written by the American College of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology, call 1-800-23 STING.

tion, Atlas will emphasize teaching, learning and assessment for all children. Pacesetter introduces high school students at an early age to high level math, English and social studies, creating a marriage between math and the arts, according to Casen.

Registration

State law requires school attendance for every child between the ages of five and 16. All children in the state of Maryland will be required to attend kindergarten or an alternative program setting. A law was passed three years ago that lowered the age of compulsory school attendance to five years of age; it affects all children who are five by December 31, 1996. It requires that children attend kindergarten before entering first grade.

The law permits some exemptions. Five-year-olds may be enrolled in a child care center or Head Start program or home schooling. When appropriate, a child may be granted a one-year level of maturity waiver.

Children cannot be enrolled in first grade unless they have completed a kindergarten or one of the alternative programs.

A parent or guardian of a child who attended an alternative program must register the child for first grade prior to the opening of school of the year in which the child becomes six years old and must provide documentation showing proof of attendance in the alternative setting. Documentation includes the date the child was enrolled and the number of days the child was absent.

A six-year-old child who moves into Maryland who has not had a kindergarten experience may be enrolled in kindergarten or first grade. The local school system will determine the appropriate grade placement.

Newcomers to the school system should call the School Boundaries office, 301-952-6300, to ascertain which school their children should attend.

Parents of students new to the school system who have not pre-registered should bring their child's birth certificate, proof of residence in Prince George's County (deed, rental contract), record of immunization and the child's last report card if entering first grade or above.

Lunch Prices

Lunch and breakfast prices have stayed the same as last year for children.

Lunch for elementary school children will cost $1.50 this year; reduced price lunches will be $.40. Lunch for middle and high schoolers will be $1.60. Adult lunches will be $2.35, excluding a beverage. Breakfast in all schools will be $1.10; reduced price breakfasts, $.30. Adult breakfasts, $1.35.

Children will be bringing home new information about reduced cost lunches on the first day of school. See adjoining article on this policy. Parents who think they qualify for these should contact their child's school.

Extra-curricular Activities

Students will still need to have a 2.0 or better grade average in order to participate in sports or activities; averages will be computed each quarter.

Safety

This will be the third year of a four-year security enhancement program. Each high school and middle school now has additional security. Surveillance cameras have been placed in all high schools and on many school buses.

Peer mediation teams will be established in every high school and every middle school, all of which will have additional counselors. The principal has the authority to conduct random locker searches with hand-held metal detectors.

Superintendent Clark has sent a letter to parents asking them to store weapons carefully. If a child should bring a loaded weapon to school, the parent will be prosecuted under state law.

Expulsion Policy

Strict standards will continue to be upheld for drug, alcohol and weapons (including knives) abuse. Students need to be aware that none of these may be brought to school at any time and that expulsion will result should this rule be broken. According to the Code of Student Conduct, students will be expelled for the first offense involving the use of or possession of weapons. For incidents involving drugs or alcohol, the students will be expelled for the first offense involving distribution and the second offense involving possession. Most of these students are not eligible for admission to the Prince George's County school system. Students who are readmitted must remain expelled for at least the remainder of the semester in which the incident occurred and the following full semester. They must also present documentation of satisfactory participation in the alcohol/drug treatment program.

Policy on Medication

The Department of Health Services within the Prince George's County Public Schools, acting on a recommendation from the state of Maryland, changed school policy three years ago regarding the dispensing of prescription and non-prescription medicine to students.

No medicines will be given to students without a physician's medication authorization form PS-51 or PS51-EPIPEN. Forms are available at all schools.

Parents are asked to inform the school principal, health services staff and the classroom teacher of any known allergy or serious health problem their child(ren) may have. Every effort will be made to protect all students from injury and to provide a healthful environment.

Students will be transported by ambulance to the nearest medical facility should he/she require any emergency treatment that cannot be provided at the school site. Parents will be notified as soon as possible.

Dress Code

A dress code for students has been initiated this year. The goal is not to embarrass children but to encourage them to come to school dressed in good taste. (See accompanying article.)

Lunch-Milk Program Eligibility Revised

The Maryland State Department of Education recently announced revised income eligibility guidelines for free and reduced price school meals and free milk. The guidelines will be in effect through June 30, 1997.

Entitlement to free and reduced price meals or free milk is determined by household size and income. For example, a child from a family of four will be entitled to a free lunch and/or breakfast or, where available, a free milk if the household's current income is below $20,280. Students in four-member households with incomes between $20,280 and $28,860 will pay 40 cents for a reduced price lunch and 30 cents for a reduced price breakfast.

These guidelines are used by schools, institutions, and day care centers participating in the National School Lunch Program, the School Breakfast Program, the Special Milk Program, and the Child and Adult Care Food Program.

Application forms with a letter to parents will be sent to families with children in school at the beginning of the school year. Households receiving food stamps or Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) must list: 1) the child's name; 2) their food stamp or AFDC case number; and 3) the signature of an adult household member.

All other households must list: 1) the names of all household members; 2) the amount of income received by each household member; 3) the type of income (wages, child support, etc.) and how often income is received; 4) the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct; and 5) the Social Security number of an adult household member who signs the application or a statement that the household member does not possess one. Households that list food stamp or AFDC case numbers must report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year.

Information provided on the application is used for determining and verifying eligibility for free or reduced price meals. Information on the eligibility status of each child may be given to local Title I officials for allocation and evaluation purposes.

In the operation of the child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, age, disability, national origin, or ability to pay. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Because of federal requirements, counties verify income information on three percent of all applications approved for free and reduced price meals by October 31 annually. Applications will not be verified until after they have been approved. The applications to be verified will be randomly selected using procedures developed by a committee made up of representatives from several of the state's school systems and other agencies. Households selected

Student Newspaper At Greenbelt Middle

This year Greenbelt Middle School is proud to announce the inauguration of the school's first newspaper, "The Teddy Times." The newspaper is made possible by the school's partnership with Chevy Chase Bank. Each month, Chevy Chase Bank will pay the printing cost of 2000 copies of the newspaper. In addition to paying for the printing cost of the paper, the bank will place 200 copies of each issue in each branch of the bank. This type of exposure for the school will mean that it will be able to showcase the accomplishments of its students.

The mission of "The Teddy Times" is to forge strong links between the school and the entire Greenbelt community. The "Teddy Times" will feature monthly articles by this area's school board member, the executive director of the Maryland Education Coalition and other outside writers. The paper will focus on what is happening in the school and in the community. Each edition of the paper will feature the school calendar of events and other important school information. It is hoped that the "Teddy Times" will set a new standard for school newspapers.

The staff of the "Teddy Times" is made up of students in the 7th and 8th grades. This student staff comes from all of the neighborhoods that make up the Greenbelt school family. The students are enthusiastic about the publication of the paper and they have worked all summer to ensure that the first issue sets an excellent tone for the entire school year. Dan Feng of Springhill Court and Ashley Gohr of Morrison Drive are two of the student reporters on the Teddy Times. These two students have brought great energy to the entire news staff. They will be the feature reporters for the news in the Greenbelt community.

All parents are urged to attend the "Back-to-School Night" on September 17. The program will begin at 7 p.m. The "Teddy Times" will unveil its school store, The Bear Essentials. All items will use the teddy bear as a mascot. All sales will support the efforts of the newspaper and the new computer system which has been purchased.

Also 15 new computers have been added to the library, where the computer stations will become automated and connected to the Internet.

Special Education Wing

Greenbelt Middle School's Wing had a productive year in 1995-1996 and hopes to do better in the 1996-1997 school year. The Maryland Functional Reading Test (MFRT) scores have increased by 24 per cent and the Maryland Functional Math Scores (MFMS) have increased by 33 per cent. Eleven per cent of the students passed the writing test, which was given for the first time this year. Each year the Wing program has grown and changed. Staff worked hard to accommodate each child, and parents were very supportive.

Special Registration At Springhill Lake

Linda Sherwood, principal of Springhill Lake Elementary School, will be in the school on Saturday, August 31 from 10 a.m. till 2 p.m. and on Monday, Labor Day, September 2 from 8 till 11 a.m., to register any students whose parents have not had the opportunity to register them.

"Back to School" Safety Campaign

Area police departments are launching "Back to School," a four-week intensive traffic safety campaign to protect children. Through September 20, police throughout the region will increase patrols in school zones and along bus routes. The annual campaign, sponsored by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG), is aimed at motorists violating school bus or school zone driving laws.

The stepped-up enforcement effort includes public service announcements stressing the importance of stopping for school buses and the need to observe speed limits in or near school zones.

COG will release information on the results of the four-week campaign as well as on the number of summonses in early October. During the 1995 campaign, police ticketed 190 drivers for passing stopped school buses and 4,183 drivers for speeding in school zones. For more information on the "Back to School" campaign, contact Lt. James Gilbertson, City of Fairfax Police Department at (703) 385-7963, or Joe Zelinka at (202) 962-3270.

for verification will be notified by the school and told what type of documentation they will need to submit to prove that their income has been correctly reported on the application.

For more information, call 301-952-6580.

Roosevelt High School Starts a New Year

Eleanor Roosevelt High School opens Tuesday, September 3 with additional programs and some new personnel. This year there will be 14 new teachers on the staff. Although the teachers who have moved on to other positions will be missed, the school looks forward to the experience and fresh perspective the new staff members will bring.

In addition to successful ongoing programs, new programs will be added: distance learning lab, new SAT Prep courses, Prince George's Community College (PGCC) partnership, updated computer lab, and much more. Bell Atlantic is in the process of installing a state of the art distance learning center. Roosevelt will broadcast a German course, receive an Italian course and have the opportunity to receive presentations from Johns Hopkins University, N.I.H. and other centers as soon as they are on line.

PGCC will be offering a "College Success" course for which students will receive college credit. This Pathways Program is geared for students who might not consider college a viable option for them.

Roosevelt was awarded a $15,000 Goals 2000 grant to develop curriculum and lessons for the high school assessment portion of MSPAP. Teachers in English, math, science and social studies will be working to formalize pre and post assessments for these ten subject area tests. The ten tests - three in English, three in social studies, two in math and two in science will become graduation requirements for the class of 2001. The Maryland State Department of Education is working closely with the schools to create appropriate assessments.

On Tuesday all students should report to school by 9:24 a.m. or for the zero period at 8:15 a.m. Schedules will be distributed through the homeroom class. Students should come prepared with notebooks, pens and pencils. Dr. Gerald Boarman and the entire staff of Eleanor Roosevelt look forward to working closely with parents and the community to continue Roosevelt's reputation of excellence.

Greenbelt Elementary Enrollment Jumping

Greenbelt Elementary School children will meet in the gym on the first day of school, Tuesday, September 2. Teachers will be there to help them. School hours will be the same as last year, 8:40 a.m. to 3:10 p.m.

According to Principal Carolyn Goff, there is a lot of excitement in the air and she and her staff are looking forward to the opening. So far 755 students have registered and "they're still coming in." Every bit of space is being used to accommodate these large numbers.

Faculty

Besides the faculty members who left in June at the end of the school year, two more departed during the summer. Roz Efron, long time primary resource teacher at both Greenbelt Center and Greenbelt Elementary Schools, has retired. Fred Howze, physical education teacher, has moved on to a high school.

New, but experienced, teachers are already at work. They are: first grade teachers Barbara Packer and Cathy Cappa; third grade teachers Brenda Risos and Jennifer Dunn; fourth grade, Kim Garrett; and sixth, Verta Malone. Ray Wrenn, physical education teacher; Ronnie Singer, reading teacher; and instrumental music teacher John Marrare will be joined by a new special education/intermediate resource teacher, Terri Doane. Mary Mullenix, who taught first grade, will become the primary resource teacher.

Mrs. Goff reported that the school had received $90,000 designated to comprehensive schools over a three year period. The amount will be doubled next year and tripled the following year. She hopes that this increase in funds will help Greenbelt Elementary School to reach its goal of an all day kindergarten. The money this year has made possible the hiring of the third special education/intermediate resource person and will also be used to enhance the technological program and provide staff development.

Another goal for the year will be training on the Internet and the forming of a home page for the school.

Early Retirement Program Deadline

Louis L. Goldstein, chairman of the Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems, said August 31 is the deadline for state employees to apply for the Early Retirement Incentive Program. Approximately 2,600 state employees project to participate. Eligible state employees should file applications (Form 130) by Saturday, August 31 in order to participate.

The State Retirement Agency will remain open on Saturday, August 31, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. to accept applications submitted in person, by mail or by fax. Forms may be delivered in person, or by mail, to: State Retirement Agency, 300 West Preston Street, Room 402, Baltimore, Maryland 21201. Forms may be faxed to the agency at 410-333-7550 or 410-333-7557.

State employees who have questions about the Early Retirement Incentive Program may contact the office by calling 410-767-4030 in the Baltimore area or 1-800-492-5909 from elsewhere in the state.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

According to Greenbelt police, a 15 year old resident youth was charged on a juvenile petition with two counts of strong arm robbery. The robbery occurred on July 30 in the area of Crescent Road and Lakeside Drive. The youth was released to a parent pending action by the Juvenile Justice System.

A second warrant was issued in connection with the robbery. An 18 year old resident man is charged with strong arm robbery and assault with intent to rob. The warrant for arrest making the charges was turned over to the Prince George's Sheriff's Department for service.

Two men wearing dark clothing and stocking masks entered the Nations Bank office at 103 Centerway on Monday morning, August 19, at 8:50 a.m. Each man was armed with an unknown type of handgun. The men ordered everyone to the floor. One man jumped over the counter and removed money from the teller stations. The two exited the bank and fled in an unknown direction.

A woman heard glass break and people walking around in a vacant apartment in the 6100 block of Breezewood Court on Friday night, August 16. Officers arriving on the scene observed someone leaving the apartment through a sliding glass door. The man spotted the officers and ran back into the apartment and jumped out a bedroom window. The man fled on foot and was last seen running toward Cherrywood Lane. He is described as a black male, possible first name of Mario, wearing a black T-shirt, blue jean shorts, and white sneakers.

A second suspect attempting to get away was apprehended and arrested. The 22 year old non-resident man was charged with burglary and held on $500 bond pending trial.

While searching for the first man, an officer located someone in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace matching the description. The man had a loaded Mauser .32 caliber semi-automatic handgun in his possession. The man, a 20 year old non-resident, was arrested, charged with carrying a handgun. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner the man was released pending trial.

A bomb threat was called in to the 7-11 Store, 109 Centerway on Thursday morning, August 22. No bomb was found in the store. The phone call was traced back to a residence and a 13 year old resident youth was arrested. The youth was charged with making a false statement/bomb threat and telephone misuse and was released to a parent pending action by Juvenile Justice System.

A vehicle was stopped in the area of Breezewood Drive and Cherrywood Lane in the early hours of Monday, August 19, for traffic violation. The driver was arrested, charged with driving while intoxicated. The passenger was sent on his way, but returned a short time later and confronted the officer who was in his car completing paperwork. He was told to leave the scene, but refused to do so and approached the officer. He was placed under arrest after grabbing the officer. The 24 year old non-resident man was charged with battery, obstructing and hindering and resisting arrest. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner, the man was held on $7,500 bond.

An officer responded to a residence in the 6000 block of Springhill Drive in the early hours of Tuesday morning, August 20, on a report of disorderly subjects. Two people were located on the scene who had paraphernalia commonly used to smoke marijuana in their possession. McMullin Displays Olympic Art at Labor Day Festival

by Eileen Peterson

Art work done at the Atlanta Olympics will be on display through Labor Day on the second floor of the Community Center.

Micheal McMullin, Greenbelt artist, created large world maps on 3' x 7' panels, doweled together, as a surface for collaborative art expression by, among others, many gold medal winners.

Set up in the Global Olympic Village, the maps measured 15 feet across.

Gold Medals

Shannon Miller, member of the U.S. gymnastics team that won a gold medal, and most of the gold-medalist U.S. women's soccer team expressed their artistic fervor on the maps.

On TV

At 11:40 p.m., Friday night, July 25, Bob Costas, the NBC anchorman for the Olympic games said, "Janet Evans (gold medal in swimming at the Barcelona Olympics) vented her creative energy today" - and suddenly McMullin's maps were in view with hordes of photographers taking pictures as Janet "expressed her enthusiasm" (Costas' words) by painting vivid swipes of bright colors. Then the TV camera drew back to show the huge map in its multicolor glory. It was maybe 20 - 30 seconds, but it was on national TV.

Amidst Chaos

Two hours later, the bomb went off in Centennial Park (where the Village is). "I could hear and almost feel the blast," recalls McMullin, who was in the entertainers' dressing room at a distance from the blast about equal to that between the east entrance of the community center and the video store. "I was swiping a cheese and ham sandwich from Travis Tritt (country-western singer)," said McMullin. It was, however, a shocking moment that became more somber for McMullin when the park closed for three days and he was unable to continue doing his "site" painting outside with the general public.

Sponsors

This was the 100th such painting organized by McMullin. His materials and trip cost were underwritten by International Paper, Dutch Boy Paints and AT&T. He created the panels from hollow-core doors covered by a world-map relief made from 3/4" gator foam.

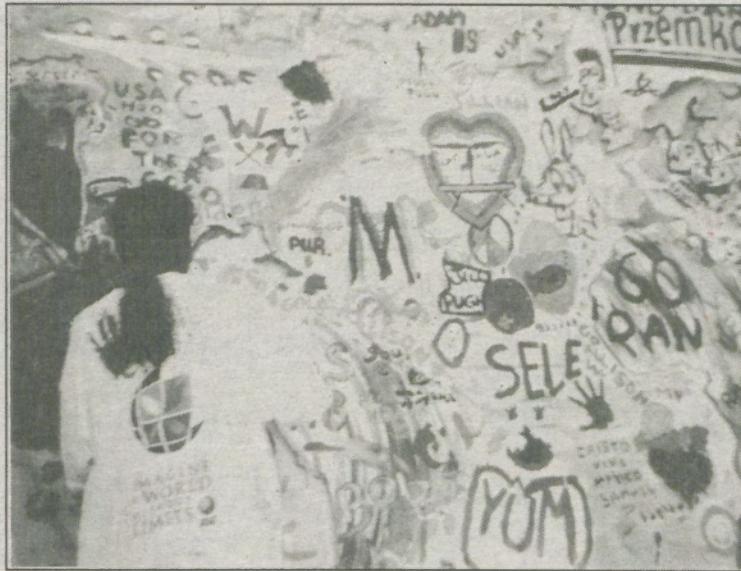

The outside community paintings were done on canvas and drew appreciative and curious comments; many were willing to leave their artistic moment at the Olympics.

Here and Now

McMullin has organized collaborative paintings - any person coming along can add something - since the '89 Labor Day Festival. This year, he will position a canvas somewhere on the grounds on one day of the four-day festival, so look for him. He will display the painting later.

He did site paintings at the Million Man march and at both the Pro-Life and Pro-Choice marches. His works have been in juried shows at the Corcoran Gallery, the D.C. Arts Center and at the Prince George's County Library Art Gallery in Greenbelt.

A native of Iowa, McMullin moved to Greenbelt 13 years ago. He lives on Ridge Road with wife Melinda and children Katelin, Ryan and Emma. When he is not at his studio upstairs in the Community Center, he is a scientific illustrator at the Naval Research Lab in Washington, D.C.

Melinda McMullin adds a personal touch to one of her husband Micheal's collaborative paintings at the Atlanta Olympics.

Feng resides on Lakecrest and is an archivist with the National Archives.

Guest celebrity Rooter, The Warthog, is joined by Little Miss Greenbelt Jessica Mealey, Shabnam Mazhari, Junior Miss Greenbelt, Rachel Petty, Miss Greenbelt, swimmers and volunteers at the Greenbriar 2nd Annual Swimathon benefitting the American Cancer Society.

Successful Swimathon Held at Greenbriar

The Greenbriar Community Association (GCA) hosted its second annual Swimathon to benefit the American Cancer Society on Saturday, August 24, at the Greenbriar pool. The GCA received an overwhelming response from local businesses whose collective efforts helped to ensure the success of the event. Over $1,704 was collected in donations, including food, beverages, gift certificates, movie passes, T-shirts, and other items.

Twenty-four swimmers and walkers participated and raised over $1,200. Entertainment was provided by Rooter the Warthog and Sparky the Clown from College Clowns.

All swimmers and walkers received at least one gift and were treated to a free lunch prepared by volunteers. Refreshments were also available for purchase, and all proceeds collected were donated to the American Cancer Society. It was a fun-filled day and a way for the community to support the research efforts of the American Cancer Society.
